

Two panoramic photographs of military groups: Company A, 130th Field Artillery, 35th Division, World War I and one from World War II taken in Columbus, Georgia.

The first panoramic photograph shows soldiers, probably World War II, taken in Columbus, Georgia, by Maurice Studios. The second panoramic shows Battery A, 130th Field Artillery, 35th Division, taken October 13, 1917, at Camp Doniphan, Oklahoma. Written in by hand is the phrase The Gang. All of the individuals are identified by hand, also, but the names are not always legible. The photographer was Willard.
