Kansas Adjutant General general correspondence, 1870

Section 8, Pages 211 - 240

This correspondence of the Kansas Adjutant General includes letters received on a variety of topics including supplies, ammunition, Indian relations, depositions, orders, commissions, enrollments and others. Letters on Indian relations refer mostly to conflicts between white settlers and a group of Indians near the forks of the Solomon River. Price Raid claims are also addressed. Letters were often addressed to Governor James Harvey or to Adjutant General David Whittaker.

to suffer from the cold nights & do not deem it judicious to keep them longer exposed without necessity -

At the same time I am anxious to overthrow this painful impression among the frontier settlers in the minds of some of the military authorities here, to give them all the protection we have the power to extend & I would therefore be glad to hear from you on this subject - I regard myself reluctantly the slightest idea that there will be any further Indian trouble this year -

Be assured however that I shall always consider it a pleasure as well as a duty to do what I can to satisfy the wishes & secure the safety of the frontier settlers of Kansas -

I am sincerely & respectfully Yours etc etc

Treasury Department,

Third Auditor's Office,

Nov. 8th 1870.

Sir.

It is the province of this Office, to audit all accounts of Officers serving or having served in the Quarter Master's Department, and in order to reach parties (especially of the Volunteer organizations) whose address was unknown, and communicate to them the result of its examinations, it has been customary to forward a blank request, as per form herewith enclosed, to the Adjutant General of each State, as the respective cases required, with the hope of obtaining the desired information.

These inquiries have, in general, been very cordially and promptly responded to, and the replies elicited have been of essential service, not only to this office, but also to the officers themselves, who have thus often received their final certificate of non-entitlement to the government, and other papers of value to them, which otherwise would never have come into their hands.

A large number of communications, intended for officers of the Kansas Volunteers, are now retained in this office, their address being unknown, and the letters of inquiry addressed to the Adjutant General of your State having, from some cause, for a long time remained unanswered.

As it is desirable that these officers should be made acquainted with the condition of their accounts with the Government, as speedily as possible, will you be so kind, as to call the attention of the Adjutant General of your State, to this matter, and thus aid the parties concerned, as well as confer a great favor upon this Office.

Very respectfully.
Allan Rutherford
Auditor

D.

His Excellency, the Governor of the State of Kansas

Topeka
