

Leavenworth City Directory, and Business Mirror for 1859-60

Section 8, Pages 211 - 219

In addition to advertisements, and information about various civic institutions in Leavenworth, this city directory also contained an historical sketch of the city attributed to H. Miles Moore, one of Leavenworth's early settlers. Some women are listed in the directory if they operated a business such as a boarding house, if they had a job, or, apparently, if they were widowed or unmarried. The "business mirror" section listed individual businesses grouped by the type of business or profession. The appendix included a listing of city and county officials and community institutions. The volume contained a number of ads for businesses in St. Louis, Missouri. The item referenced a map that was supposed to serve as a street guide but it was not contained in the KSHS copy of this item.

SUPERIOR SAWS.

Saw Mandrills, Saw Gummers, Upsets and Files, Straw Cutter, Cane, Corn and Tobacco Knives, Reaper Sickles, Carpenters' Squares, Butchers' Cleavers, Plates, Springs and Knives for every description of Machinery made to order.

In the manufacture of our Saws we use none but the best quality of steel, and employ the most experienced workmen. We sell at Eastern manufacturers' prices, and make the same discounts to the trade.

PIASA FOUNDRY, }
ALTON, JULY 1, 1859. }

Editors Alton National Democrat—DEAR SIR: We deem it but an act of justice to other parties, to state that the circular saw, (58 inches,) used by Mr. Hamilton in his great sawing feat, which you have witnessed, and an account of which you published a few days ago in your daily issue, was made by Messrs. Curtis & Hiles' Empire Saw Works, St. Louis, Mo.; and the fact that 31,200 feet of lumber was sawed with it in fourteen hours, alone speaks volumes in their favor, as saw manufacturers; for, notwithstanding the superiority of the mill, if the saw used on that occasion had been untrue, not of the best temper, or imperfect in any respect, such a result would not have been accomplished. And we would further state, that ever since they have been manufacturing, we have used their saws on our mills, and have invariably found them the same as Mr. Hamilton's, having as yet to hear of the first complaint—and our mills are in nearly all the Western States and Territories, and some of the Southern.

FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES,

Bank Safes of Hardened Steel and Chilled Iron, Jewelers' and Express Safes, Vaults, Vault Doors, Bank Locks with Cross Bars. Also, Manufacturers of LIGHTNING RODS AND PUMPS.

The Excelsior Safe triumphed over all others in the Great Fire of the City Buildings, Nov. 19, 1856. The EXCELSIOR SCALE took the premium over best Eastern manufacture at the Sta'e Fair in St. Louis, 1856; is sold twenty per cent. less, and guaranteed equal to any in the United States.

LABOR SAVING AND MONEY MAKING. Hoffner's Patent Screw Cutter.

PATENTED AUG. 4, 1857, AND FEB. 8, 1859.
For Blacksmiths, Plow Makers, Wagon and Carriage Makers.

Machines made of various sizes, and so as to be driven by either hand or power, capable of performing as much or more work than the machines generally in use in large shops, costing five times as much.

A common hand or power machine, (as above represented,) will cut seventy-five half-inch Bolts per hour, or forty half-inch Bolts and Taps per hour, and every nut will fit every bolt perfectly.

The die cuts on the principle of a turning tool or diamond point; it raises the chip clear instead of mashing, and therefore causes little or no friction to heat the die.

This die does not raise the thread, but leaves the bolt the same size it was before cutting.

Any shaped bolts, such as carriage stirrups, steamboat stirrups, &c., can be cut as well after being bent, as before.

A prominent feature of this machine is its simplicity of construction, and freedom from getting out of repair. In event it does get out of repair, any blacksmith can repair it at once in his own shop.

OKEY'S LATH MACHINE,

PATENTED JAN. 27, 1857.

This Machine will cut from 60,000 to 75,000 Lath per day. Requiring less power than an ordinary lath saw, and make a better and neater lath than any other Machine now in use.

Proposals from active, energetic and reliable parties for the sale of both the above Machines, in any of the undisposed of territory, will receive prompt attention. The right to manufacture at points where it will not interfere with engagements already made, will be sold to responsible parties, under proper restrictions at reasonable rates.

☐ All letters of inquiry in anywise pertaining to these Machines will receive prompt attention. Address

JOHN B. COVINGTON, Indianapolis, Ind.
